

Filene's Automatic Bargain BASEMENT

How the "white collar brigade" is lowering the cost of living here

WE are talking about the family with a salary of $25 a week, $35 or $50 a week, or maybe more. We are talking about the man with an old time salary and a family. This man is the spirit of the "overall clubs." He is the spirit of the Filene Automatic Bargain Basement Clothes Club.

It is this spirit that made possible such records as the following—Look at them!

Over 4000 women's jersey suits sold here at $23.50 and less, as fast as we could find them, during the last three months.

1675 women's silk or wool dresses sold in one day, January 7, 1920, for $19.

Democrats about 12,000 in Boston. In the presidential primary four years ago the Republicans polled 15,271 and the Democrats 8,887. The vote today will be about 27 per cent of the registration of 118,200, it was estimated.

Surprisingly light voting marked the day throughout Greater Boston. Similar apathy was reported from other sections of the State.

The cold weather and the lack of well-defined contests were assigned as reasons for the marked indifference.

EAST BOSTON TYPICAL

East Boston was typical. 17 to 9 o'clock only 23 ballots had been cast in Ward 1. Ward 1 usually from 200 to 300 votes would be cast in that period.

The voting in Wards 11, 17, 18, 19, 20 and 21 was also very light, there being but such excitement as usually accompanies an election. J. McCallister, of the ward committee, active of the candidates for delegate in 1922 registered voters at town hall, which contains five precincts, had cast ballots in Beacon Hall and South End Hall, of which the latter two precincts, 1,023 votes had been cast before noon.

General Sherborne and Thomas White received a good deal of back-slash for district committee. William F. Garcelon, of Newton, whose first name is in the list, was not present. Wood, resident strong support.

3 'BOY BANDITS' NEW MYSTERY ABOUT GUILT IN TAXI DEATH

Six Everett Youths, Arraigned After Round-Up, Are Held in Heavy Bail

Carrying a gun, held in $12,500 bail for Grand Jury.

John W. Coughlan, sixteen years old, No. 28 Devereux street, pleaded guilty to some count of breaking and entering. Held in $5,000 for hearing April 28.

John W. Rodgers, twenty years old, No. 28 Devereux street, charged with robbery on one count. No plea. Held in $5,000 for Grand Jury.

The other two defendants appeared in Chelsea Court. Disposition was as follows:

Jordan Rivers, twenty-one years old, No. 22 Belden in avenue, West Everett, charged with robbery. Held in $10,000 for further hearing.

Joseph H. Burr, eighteen years old, No. 24 Everett street, held in $10,000 for investigation.

Mrs. Barbara Sweet, seventeen-year-old, wife of Sweet, alleged leader of the gang, was in court, and while deeply affected, declared that she would stand by her husband.

I will wait for him 100 years if necessary," she declared. Mrs. Sweet was married April 9. She has told the police her husband informed her that he was employed by the United Fruit Company, and she did not know about his activities as a highwayman until last Friday night.

When she did learn she was married, she said Mrs. Sweet was unwittingly the cause of the roundup of the gang. Her visit to a pawnshop to get a loan resulted in her detention. Her husband was waiting outside, but became impatient and entered the shop, when he was also detained, and confessions were obtained from which the five alleged confederates were arrested.

It was on whether Sweet and Kelley pleaded guilty today were as Assault and battery and robbery of Assault and battery, a taxi driver, on March 15.

Breaking and entering the garage of Frederick M. Cluff, at No. 42 Witham street, Everett, the night of March 21.

Assault and battery and robbery of Joseph Chisholm of East Street, late last week.

Coughlan pleaded guilty to having a part in the break at the garage. Rodgers is charged with complicity in the roundup of Coughlan, and Burr and Rodgers are alleged to be part of the gang, and to have taken part in the robbery of Arthur Barrows of Chatham road, Everett, last Saturday night.

David Jaffee, a member of No. 1131 Forty-second street of Brooklyn, arrived in Providence today to claim the car which bears a New York 1919 number 93751. Jaffee could not account for how the car reached Providence.

The new feature and the fact that Richard told his sweetheart's attorney he was to drive two men to Boston last night for a 125 fare, were the latest developments in the case. Richard intended to apply the $25 to defray the funeral expenses of a brother, who was buried in Providence today.

This fact was brought out for the first time by Miss Dorothy Parker, Providence, sister of Violet, the young man's sweetheart, who claimed the body of the trip at 715 Sunday night.

Taxi drivers at the Providence Union station and other acquaintances of Richard had been informed by him that he was driving two men to Taunton for the sum of $5.

The Providence police learned today that the "murder" car was seen Sunday night by James Macdonald of No. 55 Cedar street on Adams street, turning into Broadway street. Macdonald said that the machine had a flat tire, which the police believe was changed on Mohawk street, as all four tires were inflated when the car was found. After making the change the men drove to the spot where the car was abandoned, where for some reason they left it.

U. S. CHAMBER OPENS FIGHT TO REDUCE HIGH LIVING COSTS

INCREASED OUTPUT

Eighty Annual Convention to Plan Program for Restoring Lower Prices

Atlantic City, N. J., April 27.—The eighty annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, opening today, is an increased production convention, with about 2,000 business men endeavoring to work out a program for increased industrial output as a means of reducing prices. Discussing plans to increase output, A. W. Douglas of St. Louis said:

"There cannot be expected to fall until production overcomes consumption. The work of the many associations that have been formed to fight the high cost of living will be useless unless the production of commodities is increased to meet demand."

"There is no question of men's working increased production to the detriment of their health. Men doing his share to meet the heavy demand. We must get out of the rut, however, this is to be regarded as a philosophy. He is much like any other business man who looks for a profit on his investment. The only thing that can be accomplished only with the same amount of cost and effort as the farmers."

"The schedule for the first regular session calls for discussion on raising prices."

Sir Auckland Geddes, new British minister, will address the convention on Wednesday night.

ASKS MARRIAGE BE ANNULLED

Mrs. Agnes E. Clough of Marlboro Claims Husband Was Already Married

Alleging that at the time she was married to Byron H. Clough, now of Atlanta, Ga., he had a wife living from whom he was divorced, Mrs. Agnes E. Clough of Marlboro has filed a petition in the Middlesex superior court at East Cambridge asking that the marriage be annulled.

On December 28, 1919, and lived in Lynn and Framingham. She further alleges that at her request, she was married to Byron H. Clough on April 12, 1919, at Providence, R. I.

Mrs. Clough's attorney, Mr. J. H. W. Jones, of Boston, is asking for an annulment of the marriage. He claims that the marriage was void from the beginning because the husband was already married.

Every Little Bit Helps the Sugar Baron

What's a cent increased cost per pound between friends? This seems to be the situation among officials of the American Sugar Refining Company, which is alleged to have "cornered" the sugar market.

While Attorney-General Palmer was sending out notices to sugar refiners to attend a conference at Washington for the purpose of solving the "sugar shortage" and bringing about reasonable prices, the American Sugar Refining Company, which does a fourth of the refining in the country, announced an advance of one cent for granulated sugar, making the selling price 18 1/2 cents wholesale.

Simultaneously salesmen with sugar were arriving at airports. Five ships with 10,000 bags of Cuban raw sugar, averaging between 200 and 250 pounds per bag were at the New Orleans docks today waiting to be unloaded.

CLAIMS SCHOOLS 'MAKE SLAVES'

Councillor Sullivan Makes a Spirited Attack on Lyman and Shirley Institutions

Declaring the Lyman and Shirley schools made slaves of boys and girls, Lewis R. Sullivan of the Governor's Council urged the City Council not to pass Mayor Peter's consolidation bill which would bring about the abolition of Suffolk School on Beacon Hill.

"Don't abolish Suffolk School and turn the boys of Suffolk county over to State institutions," Lyman and Shirley schools make slaves of the boys and girls by turning them into the tobacco fields and in homes for a few weeks, some of which the boys receive while the girls get only scanty diets.

"A boy who is sent to Beacon Hill may be released in nine months, while a sentence to a State institution is indeterminate. A boy may be kept at Lyman School until he is sixteen and then sent to Concord until he is twenty-one. You make a criminal out of a boy by sending him to Concord."

Sullivan declared that boys from Suffolk School make slaves, and that some of these boys of whom he has knowledge are better for having been there. Boys leaving the institution there find no trouble in getting work in their factories at high wages. He paid tribute to the master, John Ryan.

FAVOR MORE PAY FOR SOMERVILLE TEACHERS

Salary increases aggregating approximately $5,000 were recommended by the Finance Committee of the Somerville School Board. An increase of $100 a year was recommended for the independent clerk, which would make his salary $3,000. Assistant superintendent Edward was asked to receive $2,500. Increases of $100 were recommended for the school nurses and $200 increase to the chief supervisor. The Finance Committee also recommended an increase of $100 for the principal, Mr. J. H. Warren, and $100 for the principal, Mr. J. H. Warren, and $100 for the principal, Mr. J. H. Warren.

How is this Year Different from Past Years in the History of Motor Transportation

YOU men who have watched the development of the automobile industry from the beginning remember how it used to be five or six years ago.

Some manufacturer announced a production of 5,000 cars for the coming year and everybody pitied him.

Registrations had already reached three millions.

The short sighted dealer shook his head and said it couldn't last.

It is different today.

With nearly 8,000,000 registrations ahead for the year 1920, we see the industry still in its infancy.

There can be no point of saturation short of the transportation needs of the country!

What are the transportation needs of America — passenger and freight—and when will they be met?

That is a question our children's grandchildren will still be asking.

So, with motor vehicles as with tires, there will be no limit to the demand for the most fit.

For example—today there is no scarcity of tires. You see no cars laid up for want of tires.

There is a scarcity of U. S. Tires.

This company with its enormous stake—the largest in the industry—is taking the long view—the sound, constructive view.

We are building and equipping for greater capacity, but placing responsibility for quality above the temptation of forced production. When we have doubled and trebled our facilities, there will still be a scarcity of U. S. Tires.

Business Men Call Upon Legislators to Halt High Interest Rate

Rejection of the so-called "loan shark" bill, which would permit small loan dealers to charge 40 per cent interest a year on unsecured loans of $50 or less, is demanded by an ever-increasing number of business men. The measure comes up for final action in the Legislature tomorrow.

Among those who have declared their opposition to the pending legislation are C. C. Ferris, president of the Merchants' Association; Max Mitchell, president of the Commercial Union; and Henry Abrahamson, former president of the Boston Central Labor Union. All of these men are familiar with the dealings of "loan sharks" and call upon their representatives in the Legislature to halt the proposed legislation.

CREDIT UNIONS IDEAL
Small loan houses are permitted by existing law to exact interest at the rate of 3 per cent a month, or 36 per cent a year, and business men characterize the law as "outrageous." The bill has been passed by both the Senate and House, but the enactment stage remains before it would go to Governor Coolidge for approval.

However, with a storm of disapproval, gaining momentum throughout the State, legislators are expected to reject the bill. With credit unions authorized by the State operating, these business men say, persons in need of small amounts to make them known to one of these unions, which will charge them on the average around one per cent a month.

There are sixty credit unions in this State, and the only reason for their existence is to furnish a holder of one or more shares of stock, which will be sold at $100 a share.

Mr. Mitchell declared that the aim to secure 40 per cent interest is "outrageous and beyond words." He said that when credit unions have been formed, there has been no more trouble from "loan sharks."

"The credit union is the only solution of this public evil," he said.

PROVES TRUTH
"They should be formed in every large business establishment among the employees, with the sole purpose of encouraging thrift and meriting credit as they are bound to receive. Credit unions have been operating since 1860 and the loan from bank accounts has been almost negligible."

Mr. Abrahamson, outlining existing law permitting "loan sharks" to exact 36 per cent a year, "This is far too much," he said, "when a poor fellow has been caught by an unscrupulous money lender. He is in bondage the rest of his life. Labor unions have taken up this credit union idea with great success. Some industries will discharge an employee who goes to a 'loan shark' and they will not pay over the man's wages to loan agent. We have established a credit union among the electricians."

Captures Young Doe in Mystic River

Lacey was in a robust when he saw the doe. He drove it under the bridge and it was shot by Lacey. Lacey fastened ropes around the doe's legs and it was driven up to the pier, but not before the doe's legs had been broken. Lacey then turned the animal over to the Park and Game Commission. It is supposed that it wandered off the Middlesex Fells reservation.

Mr. Ferris said that employees at his place of business take advantage of their credit union. They not only are able to secure small loans, but they grasp the idea of their credit union way help the community generally.

The credit union idea is being taken up in other States. New York has adopted a law similar to the one in Massachusetts. North Carolina has one. A national headquarters has been opened in New York to do New York is operating at No. 2 Park square.

Such Judges as Anderson
Rescue Our Judiciary
From Condemnation

Judge Anderson of the United States Court for the District of Massachusetts has spoken once more like a patriot and statesman and a learned judge from the Federal bench.

Several times he has warned the country against the recent hysteria about spies. He declared that the same type of profiteering patriots who were accusing every one who was in their way of being German spies during the war were now raising the cry against alleged "Red Revolutionists" for the same mean profiteering reactionary purposes. He told us some time ago that as United States District Attorney he had investigated the German spy charges and he had found 99 per cent. of them false and mostly raised by people who had some personal axe to grind.

The other day there came before him, on a writ of habeas corpus, a large number of people seized by our National Department of Justice on the charge that they were members of a revolutionary party and kept brutally for long periods in prison without any proof of the charges against them. Concerning this kind of conduct, Judge Anderson raised his voice from the bench. He said:

I wish you would show me one case in which the Department of Justice has the authority to arrest persons and hold them for two weeks without warrants. A more lawless proceeding is hard to conceive. Talk about Americanization of those who carry on such proceedings. I can hardly sit on the bench as an American citizen and restrain my indignation. I view with horror such proceedings as this.

Such judges as George W. Anderson rescue our American judicial institutions from the sweeping condemnation of the American people. There is often a danger in a democratic form of government that people may sweepingly condemn an institution because it is administered by men whose conduct meets public disapproval. It is just that men like Judge Anderson of Massachusetts call to the public attention the fact that it is not the institutions, but the men who administer them, that are at fault. Such men as Judge Anderson show the people that they have institutions which CAN BE administered to protect the average man and even the more obscure, like the foreign workman whom our capitalists have brought over here to do their hewing of wood and hauling of water, when the right man administers.

While Judge Anderson and other good judges are rendering their verdict against this conspiracy to frighten the American people concerning revolutionary conspiracies on the part of our American workmen and to inveigle them into a general approval of reactionary laws that violate our constitutional liberties, the people themselves are showing how little they really are frightened and how much they thoroughly condemn this entire heretic hunting farce.

Senator Johnson of California is the one man who in the United States Senate has stood out against the attacks upon free speech and the right of free assembly and the freedom of the press, has condemned our treachery toward Russia and has denounced root and branch the League of Nations and the attempt to involve us in the intrigues and imperialism of unregenerate Europe.

This same Senator Johnson, supported by Senators of similar courage like Borah, is sweeping the Republican primaries wherever his name is submitted to the people on the ballot, while A. Mitchell Palmer of the Democratic administration, responsible for these inequities, is getting popular support nowhere, even though the entire official family and all the Federal office-holders in the United States are supporting him. In Michigan he received a paltry 7,000 votes, probably less than any common councilman in the State could have commanded. In Georgia, where he made strenuous campaign speeches and where the entire official family stretched themselves to aid him, he was beaten in the popular vote by Tom Watson, a Populist, who has more personal enemies in Georgia than any other man, and yet whose powerful pen has shown the un-Americanism of Palmer and of the administration whose spokesman and defender he is.

Fusion of Old Parties Would Save Needless Expense

In North Dakota members of the Non-Partisan League take part in the primaries as Republicans and thus have captured the Republican party machinery.

The Republican primaries for State offices come in June. Prior to that event, the standard Republicans are to hold a convention in Fargo, simultaneously with a convention of Democrats. The old party leaders will try to unite on a fusion ticket. If this is not done the old line Republicans will contest in the Republican primaries with the Non-Partisan Leaguers and, if out-voted, will, it is announced, support the Democratic ticket.

The plan is entirely logical. There is not enough practical difference between most leaders of the two old parties to justify the double overhead costs.

Neither group has any definite policy or purpose or ambition except to get offices and power for themselves.

If all the progressives in the Republican and Democratic parties, who think alike and want only efficient government, would get together; if all the reactionaries in the two parties, who prefer government for privilege and plutocracy, would also unite, we should then have two genuinely opposing, consistent and homogeneous parties, each with a definite platform and purpose.

The contest would be over as soon as the alignment was made.

More Truth Than Poetry

Misplaced Effort

WE feel so sorry for poor Dick; If he had turned to no profession And learned the art of lying brick There might be hope in his expression; But, being foolishly misled, He studied long with many a master. And now his days are filled with dread, His future seems to spell disaster.

HIS knowledge is profound, indeed; It has been culled from all the ages, But if he were a milkman he'd At least be drawing living wages.

His hard-worked wife is sure collapse Must overtake him soon or later; Sweet comfort would be theirs, perhaps, If he had learned to be a waiter.

HIS hair is long, but not because He wants it to conceal his collar; The staidest meager that he draws— A hair cut now costs half a dollar. His butcher, being asked to charge The bacon, answers, "Nothing doing!" His credit might today be large, If he had taken up shampooing.

HE sees the grocer riding past, And in no inexpensive flivver. He often is inclined to cast Decisive glances at the river.

Al, well, he chose his cheerless rut, And learned too slowly to abhor it; He'd like to be a butcher, but Alas! he lacks the figure for it.

DEAR K. C. B.—I have had the pleasure of reading your column every day to a poor fellow who some years ago suffered a terrible accident, which left him blind and paralyzed, and sometimes the only smile that appears on his tired face during the long day is brought there by what you have to say about cats and horses and kids, and it has always been my experience that any one who writes with the deliberate intention of hurting the feelings of some one else has a very sour, mean streak in his or her makeup.

And so, K. C. B., I hope that the enjoyment that all your friends get from your remarks each day and your original way of making them is not going to be spoiled by the opinion of some disgruntled person.

And whether your humor be Scotch or Irish or Canadian, as I know it to be, may it long continue to give joy to all who have insight to read, not only the lines but the spaces between; and whatever you write, dear sir, your kind heart shows through it, which is more than can be said of the communication of John Wins. So be of good cheer and continue, and when you reach where the Great Judge sits, as you say, it will not be hard to guess whether K. C. B. or J. Wins receives the honored place. Gratefully yours,

P. S.—May I hope you will publish this?

IT'S JUST ONE OF SCORES of letters. THAT HAVE come to me. SINCE JOHN Wins wrote. AND SAID to me. THAT WHAT I wrote WAS "BICKENING" stuff. AND IF JOHN Wins WILL SEND his name. HIS REAL name. AND WHERE he lives. I'LL SEND them all. SO HE may know. I SPEAK the truth. AND TO all those. WHOVE WRITTEN me. AND COUNSELED me. TO NEVER mind. WHAT JOHN Wins wrote. I HERE and now. SEND FULLEST measure. OF MY thanks. AND SAY to them. EVERY TIME I don't mind. WHAT JOHN Wins writes. AND NEVER shall. UNTIL it comes. THAT THEY who write. AND BITS of praise. SHALL CEASE to write.

HOW TO TELL
RIGHT ONE
COMES

By Winifred Black

The other is plain, practical, good-natured, energetic, ambitious, ruddy, in good health—and a "regular cave man."

Which shall she marry? Neither of them has asked her yet, but they're going to. She's sure of that.

And she wants to know whether we are always happiest married to a man whose ideals supplement our own.

Or is there more real happiness for two persons of more or less opposite temperaments, where the one relieves the intense strain of the other's idealism—by his practicality?

Now what shall she do about it?

Dear me, how I do wish I knew!

I'm afraid I'm a little sorry for both of these men—if either is deeply in love with her.

I don't think any man is likely to be delightfully happy with a woman who's always getting off in a corner somewhere and thinking him over or going for long walks by herself to think herself out.

Introspection and self-analysis are a good deal of a bore to everyone but the one who's busy at these things.

Pull yourself together, my dear. Shake the brooding nonsense out of your mind. You're nobody in particular. There's nothing grand, gloomy and peculiar about you at all. You're just a regular, sure-enough girl, with a slight warm heart and quick mind. You've been too busy movies and read too many novels—that's all.

Be good, be kind, be unselfish. Be happy, and when the right time comes, with the right man at the door, you won't have to ask any one's advice as to about how to say, "Yes, thank you."

Be sure of that.

Welcome, Mr. Wilson
Forty-eight Unions
Dinner Pail Miracle
Mars' Indifference
—By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1920.

Mr. Wilson is coming back into active politics. That is this morning's news, interesting and welcome. He will find plenty of politics in which to be active. For, so far as activity is concerned, Congress, the law-making machine, has recently been as mild as a gold fish globe with no gold fish in it.

The garment workers, a very important body of skilled men and women, whose product runs into millions yearly, now talk of "one big union," borrowing the expression from the so-called outlaws who recently dropped their leeches and went it alone, for a little while, much to the satisfaction of the railroad owners.

Garment workers and others that talk of one big union should remember that in division, diversity of opinion and of action, there is safety and progress.

In the animal kingdom, the one big union was represented by the dinosaur. He did not last.

In government, the one big union was represented by the Russian Czar bawling everything. He and his empire did not last.

Let those that talk about one big union consider the United States of America. That is a union, but it is made up of forty-eight small unions, the forty-eight States.

Each of these forty-eight unions legislates for itself. Solves its problems in its own way. In the State there is no death penalty. In another State they hanged a man for stealing a horse.

In one State there is practically no divorce. In another State you can get a divorce almost as easily as you can get a nit sundae.

In one, children are protected. In another they are exploited, and so on.

This gives elasticity, pliability. It enables forty-eight bodies of citizens to do forty-eight kinds of thinking and experimenting. Each of the forty-eight is ready and able of any time to profit by what it learns from the forty-seven other experiments.

Working men also should be divided into groups. Working and experimenting successfully, each group and the entire body profiting by the mistakes and the achievements of the others.

For instance, train the locomotive engineers. For a generation they haven't lost a strike. They got wages that were considerable. Thus they set a standard for the other workers.

But the engineers got the high wages for themselves and now the wonderfully high pay of the locomotive engineers has been cut. So ago is less than the pay of the laborer that carries bricks in a hod as helper to the bricklayer.

Don't put all your eggs in one basket, as union men, or as citizens of a nation.

Scientists and others used to celebrate the virtues of Andrew Carnegie in a memorial service. They all said his memory will live through generations and centuries.

But the Carnegie library will be remembered perhaps as long as the world exists. The great library in order that his memory might last forever.

Mr. Carnegie will not be remembered so much as a more builder of libraries, but rather as one of the first men with a great deal of money, spending the money to advertise his intelligence philanthropy during his lifetime and to do good instead of leaving it to be spent for the salvation of his soul after death.

Carnegie was worth five hundred millions. He had sense enough to know that that was too much money to spend on one little Scotch kiel.

Long after they forget the good that he did, even the fact that he set the example of wholesome philanthropy, they still will remember the remarkable fact that he gave away libraries and never gave away a book.

He went around building nests, as it were, but put no eggs in them. Men of a future day will find it incredible that a man able to give books, that feed the mind, should prefer to give empty buildings to hold the books.

As though the materials of the leaves and fishes had consisted of suddenly creating thousands of empty dinner pails with nothing to eat.

Dr. Miller, a scientist, who wants to talk to stars, is delighted, although Mars get what the answer. That means nothing. Every time you pass a crate he baby tries to talk to you. You talk baby talk and pass on.

We don't even know what it is that separates us from Mars. It would be worth your while to read Lodge's book on the temperature of other, written in the days when he was still a scientist, the hard he took up spiritualism, the hard he took up door spirit of sentimentalism.
